SHANGHAI, SATURDAY, OCTOBER 29, 1864.

WE this day publish a second portion of the Kou-kung or autobiography of the ou disant Chung Wang or Faithful King. The relation which is therein given of the progress of the rebel movement, from its cradle in the mountainous districts of Kuang-hsi, to its full development as a rival dynasty established in a rival capital, has at least the merit of authenticity. Written by a man who must have had no ordinary means of observation at his command, and under circumstances which render it unlikely that any exaggeration or misrepresentation should have crept into his report, this long and somewhat tedious account of the progress of the rebellion has especial claims on our attention. As a matter of history it is important thus to have obtained a connected account of the advance of the main body, or at least of the head quarters, of the insurgents. We shall by it be enabled to isolate the different marauding bands by which the country was devastated, and discover whether the atrocities which were undoubtedly perpetrated, were the work of the Taiping armies, countenanced by the true Insurgent leaders, or whether, as is more probable, the hordes of undisciplined and semi-savage bandits whose ravages we have so often deplored, may not have been Taipings in name alone, and may not have nominally placed themselves under the insurgent banner, trusting to find it a shelter from the consequences of their guilt. It is well known that on different occasions the heads of the movement at Nanking utterly repudiated the hordes which spread devastation through the province of Keangsoo. Although too much care cannot be taken in assuming the truth of any statement made by Chinese officials, whether Imperialist or Insurgent, at least some weight must attach to a connected recital, delivered under such peculiar circumstances as weighed on the Chung Wang when his Kou-kung was being written. That he held no exalted opinion of the integrity or disinterestedness of the leaders may confidently be assumed from the way in which he speaks of the ambition and vanity of the Eastern King, the jealousy and treachery of the Northern King, and lastly of the "peculiarity or insanity" of the Heavenly Prince himself. The motives which actuated the multitudes who followed the Insurgent flags are equally hardly dealt with. No enthusiasm for the spread of truth and Christianity enters into the estimate made by the writer. Students and sensible people were not taken in, but of the baser sort an immense number were ready to run after the new system. Ambition and necessity are the only motives which the Chung Wang, on a careful review of the events which heralded the outbreak of the rebellion, can assign as influencing either the leaders of the movement or the thousands who swelled their armies. The five Kings and the Minister of State were filled with the idea of establishing a dynasty, while the sole aim and object set before the remainder of the people was to obtain a livelihood. We cannot be surprised that so many flocked to the standard of revolt. Where any principle however holy is propagated by fire and sword, there are constant opportunities afforded to camp followers of picking up some waifs and strays, of obtaining a subsistence at the expense of the blood and groans and tears of suffering thousands. The defect in the Taiping movement was its total want of organisation, and to this may be referred most of the horrors which attended the advance of the insurgent armies. But this want of system will no longer be wondered at when the dissensions which prevailed in the councils of the chiefs are taken into consideration. No better proof can be given of the absence of any active religious principle amongst even the leading men than is afforded by the Chung Wang's autobiography. He, the Faithful King, one of the pillars of the faith so called, repudiates or ignores the existence of that great moral inspiration which has been represented by the friends of the insurgents as the moving spring of all the acts performed under the rebel administration. The statements of missionaries, and others whom prejudice or self interest had blinded, must therefore be received with caution. The fanatic Roberts, whose ravings and whose personal eccentricities as described by himself have caused so much amusement, must be looked on as a most untrustworthy witness. It is most probable also that the missionaries who visited Nanking during the period of his residence, saw the movement through those same media which obstructed the view of the foolish old man, whose grey hairs, crowned with a tawdry tiara, were a reproach to his blatant folly and wilful misrepresentations. It was thus that the English public were deceived as to the motives which led to the rise and progress of the rebellion. Thus, also, it was that a member of the House of Commons was induced to state that in the palaces of the Wangs at Soochow were found immense numbers of religious pictures, illustrating the passion and death of the Saviour, the fact being established beyond a doubt that the pictures which did crowd the dwellings of the different Wangs, were of the most obscene description. We can now afford to look back with calmness on circumstances which, when they were absolutely passing before us, carried us away with interest or excitement. Reviewing, then, the Insurgent movement, and taking as our guide the assertions made by the Chung Wang himself, we are justified in coming to the conclusion that no high and noble aspirations filled the breasts of the men who initiated the rebellion—that, in a word, they were ambitious schemers plotting to overthrow a government for the sake of their own personal aggrandisement, and utterly unfit to organise a system, or in any degree secure the happiness of the people.

THE very brief allusions which are contained in the minutes of Municipal Council meetings to the subjects that have been discussed, are not always intelligible to general readers. In many instances, indeed, the object of publishing minutes, which we presume is to afford information regarding the current Municipal affairs, is completely defeated by this brevity. The paragraph relating to bunding the settlement, which will be found in another column, is a case in point. Few save the initiated are even aware that a general advancement of the bund line of the three foreign settlements has been in contemplation; and certainly no one could derive from the concise paragraph to which we refer, the faintest notion of the question at issue. It will be remembered that, in the report on the shoreline of the settlement which we published last week, Mr. Clark, after dealing with the more important question of the deterioration of the channel of the Wongpoo, pointed out the dilapidated state of the jetties, and proposed that comprehensive alterations should be made in the bunding, so soon as the extensive repairs which it would soon be necessary to undertake, became imperative. When a reconstruction of the bunding was first suggested, a conference was held between the Councils of the French and English settlements, in order that, if possible, a plan might be mutually agreed on, by which the alterations already undertaken in the bund line of the former might be made to harmonise with those contemplated in the latter. Mr Clark prepared plans showing the existing low water mark, and the limit to which it would be desirable to advance the bunding in each settlement, so as to secure an even flow of water along the bank and avert the silting which must otherwise inevitably be caused; and these met apparently with entire approval. But in carrying out the alterations which they had commenced, the French Council deviated greatly from those plans, and adopted a limit inside of that proposed, which will not only render impossible the attainment of the uniformity in line so desirable, but will impart to the banks of the Yang-king-pang the same awkward curve which it is now purposed to remedy in the Soochow Creek. The construction of the proposed new bridge over the former stream, will moreover become a question of very doubtful expediency. Instead of the mutual extension of bunding that was proposed, by which the frontage line of the settlements would have been made continuous, and an equal extension imparted to both banks of the Yang-king-pang, the northern extremity of the French bund has been curved inward at a tangent which would make a bridge, constructed in a line with it, abut nearly on the corner of Messrs. Fogg's store. The only remedy; the only means by which, apparently, a new bridge at the outer extremity of the proposed new English bund line could become possible, would be the reclamation by the French Council of so much additional ground as would prolong the right bank of the Yang-king-pang to a parallel with the left. This arrangement will, we hope, be adopted. The unfortunate difference between the line first decided on and that which has been constructed, is no doubt attributable to the fact that the French Council do not reckon an engineer among the members of their staff. Had the alterations proceeded from other cause than a mistake, an intimation of the change of intention would of course have been conveyed. It is unfortunate that more experienced surveillance of so important a work should not have been secured, but now that the blunder has been made, it only remains to adopt the remedy we have indicated—apparently the only feasible one; and we have no doubt that, with their customary readiness to concur in any suggestion for the mutual advantage of the two settlements, the French Council will adhere to the proposal.

SUMMARY OF THE WEEK.

SINCE the date of our last Summary, the weather has become cold and there have been a few rainy days. The news in Shanghai is not of much importance. The Australian Theatrical Company still continues to enliven the settlement by nightly performances, which cannot but prove successful, the pieces being varied almost every evening. We regret, however, that in this making strenuous efforts to afford satisfaction to their audiences, two of the most promising members of the company should have become so severely indisposed, as to be unable for some time to appear in public. During the past week The Lady of Lyons and J. S. Byron's burlesque, The Bride of Abydos, together with several stock pieces, have been put on the stage, Miss Tilly Earl re-appearing in the latter piece, and doing her part ample justice. A circular has been issued by the Cemetery Committee, from which it appears that the French Municipal Council intends to join with the committee in the purchase of 100 mow of land near the Belouchee Rifle Range. The ground will be divided into two distinct parts, thus preventing any fear of future complication. The expense of laying out fifty mow and erecting necessary buildings is estimated at Tls. 20,000, which, however, is not to be at once invested, but will be expended as the cemetery may require enlargement. To meet present necessity, a chapel and lodge are to be built and a portion of the ground enclosed. The subject of the bund line of the settlements has lately been brought frequently before the public. The following result of a conference of members of the two Councils held to consult on this subject, has been published in the minutes of the last meeting of the English Council.

Bund Line.—The Chairman stated that a meeting having been arranged between members of the two Councils to dispose of this question, Mr. Heinsen and himself had met Messrs. Schmidt and Meynard of the French Council, on the 14th instant, but regretted that no decision had been arrived at, in consequence of the last named gentlemen requiring to give the matter further consideration. Mr. Clark had been present at the conference.

This matter will be found alluded to in another column. An enquiry was held on Tuesday the 25th inst., at the U. S. Consulate General, into the causes which led to the explosion of the steamer General Ward. We publish the finding of the Court in another column. A report reached us on Sunday last that, in consequence of the presence of banditti in the neighborhood of Amoy, the Chinese at Foochow carrying on business with the former port, wished to hire a steamer to go there for the purpose of removing their property.

A KIUKIANG correspondent gives us an account of a fire which occurred at that port on the morning of the 18th inst. As usual, it was through the timely aid rendered by foreigners that the fire was arrested in its progress. It is supposed that it commenced in an opium shop situated in the main street, and that it then spread over the contiguous ranges of buildings, one hundred and fifty houses having been destroyed in about a quarter of an hour. Buildings of a more solid description were next set on fire by the sparks scattered by a strong East wind. A scene of great confusion ensued, the natives and foreigners removing their effects to the open land. It was found that to stop the conflagration some of the houses in the street must be pulled down, which was accordingly done, and towards 1 o'clock it began to die out. Unfortunately Kiukiang is not provided with a fire engine, and, consequently, it was impossible to check it sooner. The laudatory efforts made themselves particularly conspicuous on the occasion, and the effective aid they rendered afforded great satisfaction to the Chinese. No life was lost, but a few persons were hurt by the falling of rafters. Two men discovered in the act of plundering, were executed on the spot, and this summary administration of justice seemed to have a salutary effect in preventing others from perpetrating a like offence. Thirty brick houses and about one hundred and fifty wooden and thatched huts were destroyed and four houses were pulled down to prevent the fire from spreading. The foreign residents sustained little loss except in the removal of their goods in anticipation of the fire being more extensive than it really was.

A HANKOW correspondent informs us that two fires broke out at that port on the 16th and 19th insts. respectively. The first occured at night, on the Han-yang side, and a large number of houses were destroyed. The second burned for three hours, behind Hankow. Through the efforts of foreigners, who pulled down the houses in its course, the fire was at length got under, not, however, before two hundred houses had been destroyed.

FROM TIENTSIN, we learn that a treaty has been negotiated between the Spanish Minister, M. Deillas, and the Chinese government. It was signed at the above port on the 11th instant, and sent home in charge of M. Toledo. The Chinese predict a severe winter and early closing of the river.

By the P. & O. Co. steamer Cadiz from JAPAN, we are in receipt of advices which confirm the intelligence previously received by the steamer Rona, as to the improved aspect of mercantile affairs. The English, French, American and Dutch ministers had gone on an official visit to Yeddo, against the will of the Gorogio, which, as is its wont, opposed many objections to the step. The results of the visit are said to be satisfactory, it being now more than probable that, henceforth, foreigners will not have to complain of the scarcity of silk in the market. It is currently reported that Chosiu has been sentenced to be degraded, stript of all his honors, and placed under the ban of government as a punishment for his assault on the sacred city Kioto. An army of twenty thousand men had been raised to be in readiness to attack him when the Tycoon should give the signal; but it seemed doubtful whether that signal would be given. The ships which remained at Simonosaki to prevent Chosiu from re-fortifying his position were treated with courtesy by the native officials and people. Chosiu, in the meantime, despatched son of his high officials to Yokohama to assure the foreign ministers of his wish that peaceful relations might be established, and Simonosaki opened to foreign commerce. It is feared, however, that the Tycoon will not allow this, though probably he will extend the foreign concessions at Kanagawa and Yokohama. It is reported that the government itzabu exchange has been stopped, but we have not heard what reasons prompted sudden measure. Several murders e taken place; but who were the pressors and who the aggrieved, we r not informed. The establishment of a nmber of Commerce in Yokohama has en contemplated and a committee appointto ascertain the opinion of the residents th regard to the scheme. It is expected at the fleet will shortly be broken up.

E AUTOGRAPHIC DEPOSITION OF CHENG-WANG, THE FAITHFUL KING, AT HIS TRIAL AFTER THE CAPTURE OF NANKING.

When Soo-chow was captured by the perialist General Ho (ch'un) the whole garrison was killed. General Ho en moved down the river with Chang-kuo-liang and laid siege to Chinkiang. Part of his army under Chin-ting-san was detached r the siege of Tang-ch'eng. It had drawn cordon of intrenched camps to the number 100, from Soo-chow as far as Hu-wei, and ad completely invested the place.

Being at this time in Tung-ch'eng I exted myself to the utmost to hold it in rder to preserve Ngauhui, it being the key that province. Li chao-show, who was collengue of mine and in the same camp rote to Chang-lo-sin and Kung-tê-shu, we lends of his who were then rising in Sanoo-ch'en, to come over and render a sistance. A most satisfactory reply was received, which they evinced their readiness to join s. Seeing, however, that the aspect of affairs as threatening, I sent a messenger to ask for ccour from Ch'en-yu-ch'eng who had taken ver the E-wang's command when that eron left, and who was then at Ningpo. had in my early youth formed an acquaintnce with Ch'en-yu-ch'eng, our homes being lose together, and our friendship had rieened since the capture of Nanking. My quest was complied with, and though the ege of Singkiao was still going on, an arry was detached for the relief of Tungh'eng. The troops crossed the river and alted at Tsung-pung. I then went personally, equipped as lightly as possible, to Tsung-yang and drew out a plan of the perations to be carried on, and discussed hem well with Ch'en-yu-ch'eng. The Imerialist troops, under the impression that ey should meet them in the front, prepared hemselves well on all sides, but we determined on resorting to a strategic movement, and as soon as we had sent out a body of Chi-ning (skirmishers?) I myself returned to Tung-ch'eng and carefully pursued my measures of defence. The movement of Ch'en-yu-ch'eng having been successful, he moved from Tsung-yang right on to Wu-wei-show, which he took. He then went on to Tung-tow-chia and Yun-tsun, and, forming a junction with Ch'ên-shih-chang's troops, destroyed the camps at Tang-t'ow, skirted the Hung-lo-stream, stormed Tung-tuan, and took Chin-sien, in both of which places he left garrisons. Ch'ên-yu-ch'eng, with cavalry as well as infantry advanced upon Lou-chiang which was once more taken. Having left some more garrisons in it, he at once proceeded with an army to Pei-ho (stream), attacked Ta-kuan and drew a line of circumvallation round [the beleagur ing force at] Tung-ch'eng, thus cutting off the Imperialist supplies. On one side of Tung-ch'eng were high hills (mountains) and on the other a level plain. The Imperialist supplies being cut off, Ch'en-yu-ch'eng drew his lines closer round their rear, while I at the head of my army issued out of the city and attacked them in front. The result was their utter defeat and our pursuit of them by three different routes. We stormed Shou-ch'eng, came into possession of Lu an and were joined by several (tens of) thousands of the people. We then crossed to Sui-hu-chien and invited Chang-lo-sing to join us, and to our great surprise he dispatched Ku-te-shu to meet us. We then decided to assault Ho-ch'iu, and after we had carried it, we handed it over to the care of Chang-lo-sing. Chen-yu-ch'eng then stormed Chang-yang-kuan and attacked Shou-chow, but being repulsed here, he withdrew his troops to Hung-wen and Soo-sung. He engaged General Tseng's army and that of Li-hoi-pin, and after the failure at Sung-sza-pin, had several indecisive battles with Imperial troops. The capital was deficient in officers and outside had no generals save Chên-yu-cheng and myself. The Government decided that we should be retained outside the capital for the purpose of carrying on the conquest. My cousin Li-sih-lieu being an athletic and brave youth, was selected to take a secondary command. Meng-tê-en, a great favorite of the Tien-wang, and one who had not been outside the capital was eventually made General-in-Chief, and invested with control both inside and outside the capital. Both myself and Chên-yu-ch'eng were to be guided by him in our operations. Ever since the E-wang left the capital and the Northern king was murdered, the feeling of the people had undergone a great change. The governmental affairs were in disorder, each man was pursuing his own course, and there was no union between them. The Sovereign had become reserved, and the affair between the Eastern, Northern and Yi-wangs had so alarmed him that he was distrustful of his ministers, and had confidence only in his own family and relations. There was a unanimous desire at this time to separate, but fears were entertained that they would only be deceptiated, as they had learnt that the Imperialists spared no Kungsi men that fell into their hands, so instead of dispersing they united more closely together. Had the Imperialist dynasty been willing to spare Kungsi men, a break-up would have taken place long ago.

Upon its being represented to the Tien-wang that the spirit of desertion was prevalent amongst the people, he issued a gracious decree, which had the effect of instilling fresh vigour into the army. For several years after, this martial spirit prevailed entirely, owing to this one burst of enthusiasm. Ch'ên-yu-ch'eng was now stationed at T'ai-hoo and Chien-shan, whilst I was maintaining hold of Loo-ngan and Hu-shan. In company with Ch'ên-yu-ch'eng I then proceeded to Ngan-hui. Our object was to discuss the present troubles and to endeavour to devise some means to put a stop to them. Ch'en-yu-ch'eng was promoted to the post of General, still retaining his former title, while I was made a Lieutenant-General and had power to move troops in any direction I required. Being now in a high position, I could not forbear remonstrating against the state of affairs and the way the Tien-wang was having dust thrown in his eyes. I prayed our Chief in my memorial, to select men of worth to assist him, to pass a law for the relief of the people, to promulgate strict laws, and to renovate the internal administration. I advised him to treat the people with great attention and still employ the Yi-wang in preference to the Ngan and the Foo princes. My remonstrance resulted in the issue of a decree depriving me of my rank. However, I wrote a second memorial and gave therein a general view of matters, besides discussing largely upon the movement. My memorial happening to pass through the hands of one of the ministers, he was so struck with its clearness and pointedness that he presented it himself, and I was re-installed in my previous position.

Chinkiang was besieged at this time by General Ho-chun, and external communication cut off. The city inside was without supplies, and outside without succour. The Yi-wang being a great way off, the only available troops were my own and those of Ch'en-yu-ch'eng. I was therefore ordered to Chinkiang and taking with me the whole of the army from Lou-an, marched in that direction, and rescued the troops, though the place fell. Hu-chun and Chang-kuo-liang then advanced upon Chu-jung where Chow-sheng-fu was in charge. After a few months attack upon this place it was taken, and Nanking liberated by the same second time. Here we will leave this subject for the present and relate the particulars of the first investment of Nanking under General Heang-yung. The siege to which I refer was undertaken by Heang-yung and Chang-kuo-liang with several thousand Manchoos, and about 30,000 Chinese troops. They advanced by Hsiao-ling-wei and took up a position at Chu-hung and Wu-fun outside the South and East gates, and extended their lines as far as the Seven old men's bridge. While Heang-yung was investing Nanking, Chinkiang was being likewise besieged by a Manchoo General named Chi, who had encamped at Chin-hua-shan, and in the neighbourhood of Tan-tu and Chin-shan. In concert with Chên-yu-chên and others I immediately proceeded to relieve Chin-kiang, but when we reached Yang-t'on we met with Chang-kuo-liang and fought several indecisive battles with his troops. General Chi then detached some regiments to reinforce him, and we brought our best men forward to meet them. To Lodge, a great leader, at Yang-tou and neither side could effect its purpose. We wanted to rescue the garrison and could not, and Chi and Chang wanted to defeat me but were equally unable to do so. We then held a council of war, and it was decided that Chên-yu-ch'eng should proceed to relieve the river to Chin-kiang in small boat. This he did, and, notwithstanding the strictness of the blockade kept up by the Imperialist gunboats, he made his way, in spite of every danger, into the city.

The agreement was that he and Wa-hsiao, the Dowager-Queen of Chinkiang, should make an attack from the city, while I was to make an attack from the outside at the same time. We discovered afterwards that there was a small creek leading from the river to Tang-tou, and that the Imperialists had taken up somewhat of an impregnable position. We therefore moved our position to the Tang-shui hills, but were immediately followed by the Imperialists, who took up a position on the side of the hill to prevent our ingress. We were not doomed to be defeated this time, for Chên-yu-ch'eng and Wa-hsiao fought their way out of the city. I was watching the fight from the summit of a hill, and in the night I led in person some 3000 veterans, and crossing the creek by Tang-wu took possession of and repulsed the deserted camps of the Imperialists. The following morning at daylight Ch'ên-shih-chang and the two other commanders at the Tang-shui hills, engaged the army of Generals Chi and Chang, whilst I, unknown to them, crossed over by Tang-tou with the object of getting into their rear. It was only in the afternoon that they became aware of my intention to intercept their retreat. The distance from Tang-tou to the Tang-shui hills is about 5 miles. When Wu-hsiao and Chên-yu-ch'eng joined us, we were all excessively delighted, and gave way to clamorous rejoicings. We fought on the following day with Generals Li and Chang, and defeated them, capturing besides sixteen of their stockades. On the same day we moved to Chinkiang, and took up our position at Chinshan,* and Chin-chi-ling at the foot of the Chin-hua hills, being the forces of General Chi. General Chi had taken every measure of precaution to prevent any surprise on his head quarters, and had fortified himself on all sides. That night we crossed the river from Golden Island† to Kua-chow, and at daybreak attacked and carried the Imperialist entrenchments at Chang-chiao (red bridge.) The camps at Poo-chow-yan and San-chu-ho to the number of 120, were entirely deserted by the Imperialists when they learnt of our success. We therefore followed up our advantage, stormed Yang-chow and *tour*ered all the supplies obtained in that neighbourhood to Chinkiang. The commandants of Tang-t'on and Chu-ho as well as of Tang-shui then left for Chinkiang and crossed over to Yang-chow. Chow-sheng-fu was the only one left in charge of General Chang's old camps, and he was left for the purpose of covering the retreat. When Tu-ch'ing and Yang-chow had been taken, and everything was settled, I was desirous of returning to the capital with my troops. In the meantime Chow-sheng-fu had been defeated by Chi and Chang-kuo-liang, his stockades taken and strengthened by the Imperialists and my return to the capital hence obstructed. I had no hope of success at this time, as all my troops were at Yang-chow and E-ching. I then made an attempt to return to Nanking by way of Loo-ho and Pa-kiao * but as soon as Chang-kuo-liang became aware of this movement, he immediately proceeded to Loo-ho and took up a position there, thus once again frustrating my plans. Our only plan now under the circumstances was to make one great effort and sell our lives as dearly as possible. We then crossed the river, and before Chang-kuo-liang had returned from Loo-ho, attacked Kua-tau and drove General Chi, who came by way of Chin-hua-shan in the hope of rescuing the place, into the Kua-tau hills where he committed suicide by shooting himself. On the death of their chief the Imperialists were thrown into great disorder, and when we became aware of what had happened, shifted our position to Chin-hua-shan and on the following morning drew up our columns at the foot of the hill, but the Imperialists having no leader retired without fighting, and left us in possession of seventy or eighty stockades. Chan-kuo-liang, as soon as he learnt of the loss of Chi's camps, hastened at once from Loo-ho, but he was too late to rescue them. He then took up a position at Yau-ta and I moved forward with my victorious columns to attack him, being supported by Wu-hua-hsiao with his cavalry and infantry. We first defeated Chang-kuo-liang's cavalry and then our infantry advanced. Chang's army was severely beaten, and on the following morning we commenced our march for the capital.

The Imperialists at Tang-t'on, seeing that the camps at Chiu-hua hill had been deserted, likewise fled and left us a clear path direct to the capital. The Eastern King then told me to storm General Heang-yung's works, adding that this must be accomplished before I should be allowed to enter the city. He made my victorious army stop in the neighbourhood of Yen-sun-chi and imposed an impossibility on them. So much disaffection was prevalent amongst the soldiers than Chen-yu-ch'eng and myself determined to proceed to the capital and have an interview with the Eastern King. When we arrived there we stated our unwillingness to attack Heang-yung's position, giving our reason that it had been held for some time, was of great strength and that it would be impossible to assault it with the chance of any speedy success. The Eastern King became greatly enraged and told us that the penalty of disobedience to orders was death. We did not therefore venture to say any more, but immediately hastened away to plan our operations. On the following day I opened the campaign by moving my position from Yen-tzu-chi to the T'ao-fung gate and placing four camps there. The Yanhin gate was then held by one of Heang-yung's generals. The following day Chang-kuo-liang returned to Hsiao-ling-wei from Tan-t'u and induced his army to engage mine. The result of which was he was defeated and fell back upon Hsiao-ling-wei. I then shifted my position and closely besieged the Yau-hsin gate. Chang, who came again attacked me with Manchoo cavalry and infantry, but by the assistance of the Yi-wang he was defeated.

On the same day an unsuccessful attempt was made to rescue the Yau-tsun-men. We pursued the retreating Imperialists on all sides, and Chiu-ling up our advantage took more than 20 stockades at Hsiao-ling-wei, after which Heang-yung and Chang-kuo-liang retired of their own accord, unpursued by us. Orders were received from the Eastern King directing Chên-yu-ch'eng and myself to collect all the arms that were in Heang-yung and Chang-kuo-liang's camps, and send them to the city. We had instructions also to pursue our victory by capturing Chu-jung and then marching on Tan-yang.

Heang and Chang reached Tan-yang six or seven days before we did, but we engaged them and finally drove them into the city. Here they maintained an obstinate defence, but did not venture outside. The Imperialists were all well disciplined and in good condition, so that my attacks were fruitless. My ill success caused the enemy to become courageous, and a vigorous sally was made against my troops outside the South Gate of Tan-yang, killed six or seven hundred of our men, including the Chief, Chow-hê-shêng, and scattered the remainder. The loss of Chow-tê-hsin, who was a man of courage, coupled with the failure to get into Tan-yang, caused the troops to become alarmed, and show every intention of deserting. Being really at a loss as to what to do, we withdrew our forces to Hin-t'an which we attacked, but again were unsuccessful. We fought with Chang-kuo-liang for twenty consecutive days without any result. Li-chao-show was at this time in the field attacking cities, but likewise with ill success. It occurred just at this time that the Eastern King was assassinated, an event that was surely ordained by heaven. But General Heang-yung not been defeated, but still held on to Hsiao-ling-wei, he might have availed himself of the disturbances in the capital, and captured it. It could not possibly have held out at that time. But it so happened that Heang-yung was defeated before the trouble at home, a conclusive evidence of the inscrutable ways of providence, which man is not permitted to fathom. The insurrection in the city commenced in the sixth year. The Tung-wang was first murdered, then the Pei-wang, and after that the Yi-wang forced by the Ngan and Foo Princes to flee from the city.

In the Inquiry held at the United States Consulate General in the matter of the explosion of the boiler of the "General Ward."

The Court find—

1st.—That the steam gauge was out of repair and that it had been so for some time.

2nd.—That the glass of the water gauge was broken.

3rd.—That there is some reason to believe that the safety valve was not in order.

4th.—That the engineer was an incompetent person.

"That an explosion occurred under such circumstances the Court consider not at all surprising, but rather that it should not have occurred sooner.

For the whole, the Court consider the late Master responsible, as he had neglected to secure the services of a competent engineer or to take the ordinary precautions, even when warned by his own and by other engineers.

It appears that the boiler was a new and strong one, and the inference is that the immediate cause of the explosion was an injection of water upon heated surfaces which had been exposed by the water becoming low in the boiler.

SIMLA IN 1864.

(Friend of India.)

The earliest notice of Simla with which we are acquainted is in the diary of the Messrs. Gerard, the intrepid brothers who were officially employed for some years in the survey of the Sutlej Valley. The following entry occurs:—"August 30th, 1817. Simla, a middling sized village, where a fakir is stationed to give water to travellers." "We encamped on the side of Jaku, and had a very extensive and beautiful prospect. The Himalayas appeared very grand, extending in a long line from East to West." In the year 1819-20-21, Simla was visited by a few officers of the Nusseree battalion, who remained during May and June till the rains set in, when they returned to Subathoo. In 1819, a tent was pitched by Lieutenant Ross near Chota Simla, and thatched over, and in 1822 the first cottage was erected by Captain Kennedy, who succeeded Lieutenant Ross as political agent, and the site is still known as that of Kennedy House. About this time, Simla was selected as a sanatarium for the servants of Government, whose health was impaired by a long residence in the plains—the territory was obtained from the Rana of Keonthul, in exchange for the castellated mansion of Raeenghur (once a Goorka fort) and its adjoining lands. In 1827, Simla was visited by Lord Amherst, who here received the Rajahs of Gurwal and Bussahir, the Rana of Jubal and a complimentary mission from Runjeet Singh. In 1832, Lord W. Bentinck resided in Bentinck's castle, now the Simla Bank, and subsequently Lord Auckland in Auckland House. In 1841, the number of houses was 54, and after the annexation of the Punjab, there has been an influx of retired officers and European settlers, and Simla has become a station of great importance. The native population, though fluctuating, has less than 12,000 at the height of the season, when the number of Europeans varies from 850 to 1,000.

The situation is most advantageous, and the surrounding scenery magnificent; the houses are irregularly built on an average elevation of about 7,000 feet above the sea, upon the spurs of Mount Jaku, and on a ridge running north of it, known as Elysium hill. The number of European houses is now upwards of 300, scattered through the forest over an extent of about seven miles. There are three great bazaars, built in terraces one above another upon a deep declivity—which are enlivened by a great variety of costumes, those of the hill tribes mingling with those of the plains, Sikhs, Afghans, Kashmiris, Ladakis and Tartars. The station is in most places densely wooded with oak, deodar and rhododendron, and there is much underwood consisting chiefly of roses, brambles, and barberry, giving the scene quite a European aspect. Rich vegetation extends down the Southern slope below the bazaar, where there is a waterfall much visited by strangers: on the north, the scenery is very beautiful, and in consequence of the snow lying longer, the trees are ornamented with grey pendulous lichens, which hang like streamers from the branches. The garden of Annandale, laid out by Colonel Mawdin in 1852, occupies a level piece of ground about 2,000 feet below the mall. It has been proposed to affiliate this garden with the Agri-Horticultural Society of the Punjab, to form a collection of indigenous alpine trees, and to distribute the better sort of grafted fruit and timber trees to the neighbouring ranges of hills. Close to the garden there is a fine grove of large old deodars, which was sketched by Lady Canning, and is now well known by the photographs of Messrs. Howard, Shepherd and Hamilton.

Nothing can be more charming to those who have just quitted the scorching plains of Hindoostan than the purity of the air and beauty of the scenery at Simla in May and June. The stupendous peaks of the Wild Jungfrau, with perpetual snow, form a glorious back ground. The view of the snowy range gives a grandeur to the scenery of the Himalayan mountains, which is wanting in the charming table land of the Nellgherries.

The rainy season usually commences about the 15th or 20th June, and lasts till the end of September with occasional intermissions. This year the rains commenced on the 7th July; until then, numerous visitors occupied themselves with archery and cricket, or rambled among the hills, collecting floral treasures. The grass is studded with violets, crow foots, mennonis and saxifrages, while cups geraniums, primroses, gentians, and Alpine roses fedeon the trees. The Municipal Commissioners have lately issued roads and streets, and have erected sign boards containing the names of the houses upon the several lines of road. Another improvement has been supplied by the publication of a directory giving the names and abodes of European residents. A lithographed map of the station executed in Colonel Thuillier's office is likewise useful. The broadwood has been carefully cleared away within eighty feet of the principal roads, and there has been a marked sanitary improvement, and the season hitherto has been very healthy.

* These are seen in number, Dejeeling, Kynor Hill, Mussoorie, Simla, Dharmsalla, Dalhousie, and Murree.

The club and three hotels are crowded with visitors and many houses have been secured for next season at enhanced rates. Simla possesses a good library and reading room, several schools,* a dispensary, theatre, gymnastic lodge, race course, and brewery. At Kotgur, four marches towards Tartary, there is a Church Missionary, who occasionally visits Simla and the neighbouring states. Since the furlow of Hill Chiefs which we lately described, the Rajas of Jheend and Puttiala have visited Simla, the latter, a minor, accompanied by his tutor, the well-known Ram Chunda of Delhi, author of a work on the Differential Calculus. The bands and bugles of these princes were sounding on one side of the ridge, while on another the volunteers, upwards of 50 strong under the command of Captain Peterson, were practising rifle shooting prior to Lord G. Paget's annual inspection.

A multitude of travellers have availed themselves of the Hindostan and Thibet road, now open for traffic nearly to China in upper Kunawar and projected to the boundary of Chinese Tartary. Amongst these are Dr. Stoliczka and Mr. Hutton of the Geological Survey, who are now exploring Spiti and Dr. Adams, Ornithologist, whose name is well known in connexion with many contributions to Natural History during a long service in various parts of India. These observers in different departments will doubtless add new observations to the chronicle of science, and we may expect further information regarding the fossils of Spiti and the special groups of animals and vegetables which characterise these elevated regions.

The great scheme of hill roads which has marked Sir Robert Montgomery's administration is being vigorously carried out, with a view to promote our commercial intercourse with Central Asia, and to facilitate the transport of the wool and borax of Chinese Tartary to Umritsar, Delhi, and Kurrachee. For this purpose, Colonel Hutchinson and Captain Lang, Royal Engineers, are now surveying the tracks on the frontier. Great efforts are being made in Gurhwal and Bussahir to bring down sufficient supplies of timber to meet the requirements of the Delhi railway, and it is understood that improving leases have been entered into with the hill chiefs, under which it is proposed to vest in the British Government the control of the forests, and to regulate the supply of timber in future years.

* The Bishop's school at Jatog has 70 European boys on the roll, and 150 native lads attend the Government school, some of these are sons of hill chiefs.

THE MODEL SETTLEMENT!

A place there is, a wonderful place
All alive with repaits and race,
Beautiful houses and simple chaus,
Merchants and traders a mingled throng
Coquets to bet their money right from wrong
All to this wonderful place repair
While to look after road and sewer
To "spot" the dirty and perilous,
Water the streets and light the lamps,
Tender the Dhobies beggars and tramps,
To upload Vizier's Lazy Lion,
(A Chinese artist not very nice)
The "pelisse" painted with a certain spirit,
To stop the fires with an engine in fear,
To stop the coolies from crying Ah-hoo,
In short, all sorts that are wanted to do
In any settlement under the sun,
From the Vizier's Lion to the Ah-hoo gun
To the midnight lie-out on the Cross
Full of whisky-toddy and fun.
There's a Corporation of best intent
Sounding little, and moral tents—
A Municipal Government.

There's a Church, and a very sang one too
With the Bishop of Bombay and Anglicanism
The Ave Maria, a gorgeous and ponderous pile
In the old Romish and pompadour style
Acatist Society, sans ear out,
Debating Society, just begun,
Library, Reading Room both together,
A sort sort of lounge in the rainy weather,
A great club (Gymkhana) lately opened,
A Municipal hall with a pendulous drum
This wonderful place improved on behoof
Of Volunteer Rifles, a martial box,
Then there's the Bungers, eight or ten,
Mostly spacious and well kept,
With mighty hillsides and mighty swards
And a wheelbarrow like mortar-boards,
Bangladaun in blue and color and lace
And residents all of this wonderful place.

Ahs and Alack for the things of to-day!
With the whole concern there's the devil to pay.
To the Church with its pews in such stylish rows
Many subscribe, but nobody goes
And the Club with the beautiful columns and all
Has stuck in to destroy a great mango wall.
When at the Library in good look,
And just begun to read a book, "Why have's the book."
The great cane campaign spoils the roads,
Carts shake up the Bungers, dogs
Break loose the chickens, but yet, Alas!
The great cane Campaign has got Gas
To the big Volcanic Rama and their pendulous drum
The echoes are noisy, and the lamentations dumb
No longer the coolies go jingling by
To bear their soil rubbish to dump dry,
For the Bungers have sung up their eyes to day.

And there's the Municipal Council. Oh!
What that business is pretty go
Elected into Bedlam, or rather approach
In the regular land Bedlam's Parliament.
They have to take care the place no protect,
But sons of the citizens strongly object,
And although they've to keep all now place in repair
And to look after everything everywhere
According to rules than for cash were made,
They may not do a thing for which paid,
The Engineer has the roads to protect
But sons of the citizens strongly object,
Assert right of property over the land
And then the whole Council fight out of hand
Thus to say the Bungers are of the lowest of castes
Made of carbonic acid rubbery and chaste
When the lowland the contagious pus drop in
And go on to the Bungers and spread sin
And their masters they very soon rob to get mine.
Those Bungers, if well used, would a revenue bring
Besides being well-kept, the principal thing.
But the Tai-sai steps in, makes the virtuous bend,
Says he would do a thing for once a thing to be said,
And a pretty good penny he pockets instead!
I am sorry.

Thus the Council, (and soon may the Settlement rue it)
Have lost the power to do, and have lost the power to do it;
Recalcitrant Tai-pungers on them lower
The Tai-sai, the Bungers, and the Council down
The Engineers at their roads and drains
Get hanged and not taken any high tree main pains,
And the Widow lading in impotent scorn
From Cornwall to Tweed and here and there,
Till Government, Council, Bungers, and Tai-sai to decide,
And Municipal Government make into air,
Up the spout.

Yes here are these illustrated affairs
Of the conglomerate, heterogeneous size
(These lines are nobody to make sound)
All jumbled together about our ears,
And value of Government was a vexatious waste,
Called now "Model Settlement."

OBALLOO.

FUNERAL DIRGE.

In darkness dim the deed was done,
Between the hours of twelve and one.
Quietly the sun stood round the plank,
Hooted the wind from the river sank,
Rippled the stream, as sullen and shook.

The lamps dismally all went out,
The dogs howled, the cat howled about,
Never a watchman's rattle was heard
To give the alarm to unto Fodor's war.

They seized it over into the stream,
Poor corpse! gone before! Poor man,
Out of its bed-clothes in haste,
From the stream, and brought
By man, wrapped, by man clothed,
In Rip Hodge's dismal grave!
Oh Fodor! [illegible]

The Scheme of a Local Bank for this Colony with Branches at the most important places in China, has been in contemplation for a very long period.

The local and foreign trade in Hongkong and at the open ports in China and Japan has increased so rapidly within the last few years that additional Banking facilities are felt to be required.

The Banks now in China being only Branches of Corporations whose head quarters are in England or India, and which were formed chiefly with the view of carrying on exchange operations between those countries and China, are scarcely in a position to deal satisfactory with the local trade which has become so much more extensive and varied than in former years.

This deficiency the Hongkong and Shanghai Banking Company will supply, and will in fact assume the same position with relation to this Colony as the Presidency Banks in India, or the Banks of Australia in their respective localities.

The Establishment of a Mint in Hongkong, providing an adequate supply of proper currency, will render a local Banking medium essential to carry out its operations, and the almost certain disappearance of the existing Compradoric system (so far as money is concerned) will also ensure Banks becoming in course of time the exclusive medium for the transaction of the monetary operations connected with trade.

For the anticipated success of this enterprise there are therefore ample grounds; and the great prosperity which has attended the working of other local associations in China clearly shows that the largest profits are obtained by those Public Companies which possess an interested local body of Proprietors or Shareholders whose support naturally forms a chief element of remunerative success.

The Bank will commence operations simultaneously in Hongkong and Shanghai and as the importance of its business at the latter place must be very great, it is intended to establish a local Board of Directors there for more effectually meeting the work. As circumstances render it advisable the Bank will establish Branches at other places.

In the distribution of Shares, Hongkong and Shanghai will equally participate. Shares will also be reserved for the other ports in China and Japan and for persons residing elsewhere, who are directly interested in the China Trade.

Applications for Shares must be addressed until further notice, to the Provisional Committee, care of Correspondents in London, Bank of London.

The above named corporation has been organized for the purpose of carrying on the Banking and Exchange business, in all its branches, in this city, and with the interior of this State, the neighboring State and Territories, and with Mexico; also, with the Atlantic cities, Europe, China, and the East Indies; for which it is provided with ample facilities.

With the view of giving to the business of the corporation all the efficiency and promptitude of a private banking firm, together with that confidential seclusion of private business matters so generally desired, the immediate management of its affairs is committed exclusively to D. O. Mills and W. C. Ralston, as President and Cashier respectively, to whom, or either of them, the customers of the Bank will apply on all business matters.

Trustees:

D. O. MILLS, LOUIS McLANE, WM. NORRIS, JOHN O. EARL, HERMAN MICHELS, W. C. RALSTON, J. B. THOMAS, THOMAS BELL, A. J. POPE, O. F. GIFFIN, JAS. WHITNEY, JR.

CONNOISSEURS
TO BE THE
ONLY GOOD SAUCE AND APPLICABLE
TO Every Variety of DISH.

Extract of a Letter from a medical gentleman at Madras to his brother at Worcester, May, 1851.

"Tell Lea and Perrins that their Sauce is highly esteemed in India, and is, in my opinion, the most palatable as well as the most wholesome sauce that is made.

CAUTION.

LEA AND PERRINS

Beg to caution the public against spurious imitations of their celebrated

WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE.

L. & P. have discovered that several of the Foreign Markets have been supplied with SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, the labels closely resembling those of the genuine Sauce, and in one or more instances the name of L. and P. forged.

L. and P. will proceed against any one who may manufacture or vend such imitations, and have instructed their correspondents in the various parts of the world, to advise them of any infringement of their rights.

Dr. HASSALL, the great Analytical Chemist, states in the Lancet, of February 4th, 1854 and in his Work on Food and its Adulterations, with reference to the Food Products chemically and microscopically examined by him.

"The Samples of Messrs. CROSSE & BLACKWELL were entirely free from Copper."

Crosse and Blackwell's

manufactures, which from their great superiority have become so universally celebrated, are obtainable from every respectable Provision Dealer in all parts of the world. Purchasers should insist upon having C. & B.'s genuine articles when they ask for them, as it is not unusual for unscrupulous dealers to substitute inferior preparations.

C. & B. invite special attention to the following, the quality of which is of the highest standard attainable.

PICKLES prepared in pure malt vinegar.

BOTTLED FRUITS for Tarts, Puddings, &c.

JAMS AND JELLIES, Marmalade, Fruits in Syrup, Crystalized Fruits. Prepared Calf's-feet and other table Jellies; Vanilla and other Creams.

PURE MUSHROOM CATSUP. Essence of Anchovies, Harvey's, Reading, Soho, Royal Table, and other choice Sauces. Essence of Coffee. Flavouring Essences. White Wine Vinegar. Durham Mustard.

SALAD OIL, the finest imported.

POTTED MEATS, Anchovy Paste, Bloater Paste. Patent Preserved Hams, Cheese, Bacon, &c. Oxford and Bologna Sausages. Yorkshire Game Patés, Yorkshire Pork Patés. Mackarel in Sauce, Kippered Herrings, Pickled Salmon in Bottles, Fried Eels, Herrings à la Sardines. Blackwall Whitebait, Fresh Oysters, Asparagus, and a great variety of other table requisites and delicacies, particulars of which will be found in their detailed Lists.

C. & B. are Special Agents for LEA & PERRINS' WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE, PHILIPPE & CANAUD'S SARDINES, SOYER'S SAUCES, RELISH AND AROMATIC MUSTARD, CARSTAIRS' SIR ROBERT PEEL'S SAUCE, GRIMWADE'S DESSICCATED MILK, and for MASSON'S FRENCH CHOCOLATE.

To guard against frauds, consumers of C. & B.'s Preparations should purchase only from those dealers on whom they can fully rely; and should be particular to have all bottles and jars destroyed when empty, and the labels defaced. Every article sent from the Manufactory, bears on its label the address,

GABRIEL.

INVENTIONS AND PATENTS.

EACH year adds almost innumerably to the list of Inventors, and still more to that of inventions which are increased by a most uncommon multiple. The fruitful ingenuity of thousands of intellects thus contributes to the comfort, convenience, and profit of the community, whilst of a necessity it also numbers the victims of too flattering hope, or of too sanguine a calculation. The list of Patents, active, passive, or neutral—vital or still-born,—productive or exhaustive, swells to enormous proportions, but never without more or less advantage from the faculties which it awakens or calls forth, if but for a brief interval into active play. Every invention confers some good upon the world. And those which tend to supply some great wants, or to relieve some great inconvenience, deserve at our hands so much the more commendation, that they cannot be called into existence at our bidding. Amongst those patented inventions which have appeared to illustrate this eventful year, and to figure in the great International contest of ingenuity and industry, though many be more showily represented and more conspicuously marshalled before us, none meets with more personal sympathies than that of the new Osteo-Eidon produced by Messrs. GABRIEL, the celebrated Dentists of London, Liverpool, and Birmingham, (as it is evidenced by their being the only dentists chosen on the Committee of the International Exhibition), whose admirable adaption of Artificial Teeth has obtained so high an approval from the profession as well as from the public. The Osteo-Eidon as a base for sets of teeth, obviates all objections applicable to other materials, and whilst firmly seated in the mouth, and free from noxious elements, dispenses with all need of mechanism, and presents an appearance not to be distinguished from that of the natural gums and teeth. Messrs. GABRIEL announce that they submit their laboratories and manufactures to gratuitous inspection during this season. As may be seen by reference to our advertising columns, Messrs. Gabriel supply Artificial Teeth and Gums on their patented system, irrespective of distance.

CAUTION.

ELLWOOD'S PATENT AIR-CHAMBER HATS.

The Patentees having established the validity of their Patent, in an action tried on the 20th and 21st days of June instant, in the Court of Common Pleas at Westminster, before Lord Chief Justice Erle and a Special Jury, in which Ellwood and another of No. 24, Great Charlotte Street, Blackfriars Road, in the Borough of Southwark, Wholesale Hat Manufacturers, were Plaintiffs; and Christy and others of No. 35, Gracechurch Street, in the City of London, also Wholesale Hat Manufacturers, were Defendants; and the Jury having by their Verdict found, that the above named Defendants had infringed the Plaintiffs' Patent, and that the Invention was new in England and in India, at the date of the Letters Patent. We, the above named Plaintiffs, do hereby give notice to all Manufacturers, Dealers in, and Sellers of Hats, Caps, or Helmets, that we shall proceed by Suit in Chancery, against all persons so manufacturing, dealing in, or selling Hats, Caps, or Helmets, constructed on the principle of "ELLWOOD'S PATENT AIR-CHAMBER HAT;" unless the previous consent of the Patentees be obtained, at the same time reserving to ourselves the right of taking proceedings against prior Infringers.

Dated this 24th day of June, 1864.

JOHN ELLWOOD & SONS,
24, GREAT CHARLOTTE STREET, BLACKFRIARS ROAD, SOUTHWARK,

Patentees for Air-Chamber Hats.

CAUTION.—No Air-Chamber Hats or Helmets are genuine unless they bear the above stamp, with either Ellwood and Son's, or the seller's name in the shield.

INFRINGEMENT OF PATENTS.

COURT OF COMMON PLEAS,
WESTMINSTER, JUNE 20TH AND 21ST.

(Sittings at Nisi Prius, at Westminster, before the Lord Chief Justice ERLE and a Special Jury.)

ELLWOOD AND ANOTHER v. CHRISTY AND OTHERS.

Mr. Hindmarsh, Mr. Webster, and Mr. T. Ashton were counsel for the plaintiffs; and Mr. Bovill, Sir G. Honyman, and Mr. Murray for the defendants.

This was an action for the infringement of a patent for a double ventilating solar hat made for India, of which the plaintiff was the assignee.

The plaintiffs are hat manufacturers in Great Charlotte-street, Blackfriars-road, and the defendants are in the same way of business in Gracechurch-street. The invention was thus described in the specification of the patent:—"Each hat is composed of two parts, leaving a space or chamber between them, so that the hot climates the heat of the sun acting on the exterior of a hat shall not pass to the head of the wearer, but be greatly modified by the non-conducting properties of the air in the space or chamber. This space may be either closed, or it may have passages for air to enter and also to pass away."

The defendants pleaded "Not guilty," traversed that the plaintiff was assignee, and alleged that the invention was not new.

The jury, after considering the matter for an hour and a half, found that the defendants had infringed the plaintiffs' patent, and that the principle of the patent was new in 1851, both in England and in India.

Verdict for the plaintiffs.
